CHAPTER 10

THE SPECIFICITIES OF A CASE HEARING AND SOLUTION AT THE CONSTITUTIONAL COURT

ART. 68. THE REVIEW OF CASES DETERMINED BY PARAGRAPH 1 OF ARTICLE 100 OF THE CONSTITUTION ON THE BASIS OF APPEALS OF THE BODIES AND PERSONS DETERMINED IN PARAGRAPHS 1, 3, 4 AND 8 OF ARTICLE 101 OF THE CONSTITUTION (THE ABSTRACT CONTROL OF THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OVER THE LEGAL NORMS)

1. In regard to cases determined by Paragraph 1 of Article 100 of the Constitution the constitutionality of the general acts as well as individual acts mentioned in that Paragraph can be challenged, except for the cases of the appeals brought by the Ombudsmen. The Ombudsmen can challenge only the constitutionality of general acts.

2. The constitutionality of the National Assembly Decisions on the ratification of the International Treaties of the Republic of Armenia can be challenged only from the perspective of meeting the requirements for the adoption of such decisions determined by the Constitution.

3. In cases regarding the challenge of the constitutionality of the Government Decisions made by the President of RA according to Paragraph 4 of Article 86 of the Constitution the President suspends the enforcement of those decisions for one month period. In regard to that case the President of RA can apply to the Constitutional Court on the day the Decree on suspension gets into force.

4. In cases mentioned in Paragraph 1 of this Article, the state or local self-government body that adopted the challenged act is involved in the case as a respondent. In cases of the challenge of the laws adopted by a referendum the National Assembly is involved as a respondent and by the decision of the Constitutional Court the Government can be involved as co-respondent if the proposal of the referendum for the Law was made by the latter.

5. In cases mentioned in Paragraph 1 of this Article the Constitutional Court makes decisions not later than in six months after the registration of the appeal.

With a grounded decision of the Constitutional Court the timeframe of the case review can be prolonged, but no longer than three months.

In cases mentioned in Paragraph 3 of this Article the Constitutional Court makes a decision not later than in one month after the registration of the appeal.

6. The Constitutional Court reviews the cases mentioned in Paragraph 1 of this Article in a written procedure except in the cases when the Constitutional Court finds that the particular case gained a wide publicity or the verbal review will foster a faster discovery of the circumstances of the case.

7. In cases mentioned in Paragraph 1 of this Article the Constitutional Court shall determine whether the legal acts referred to in the appeal are in conformity with the Constitution or not, proceeding from the following factors:

- 1) the type and the form of the legal act;
- 2) the time when the act was adopted, as well as whether it got into force in compliance with established procedures;
- 3) the necessity of protection and free exercise of human rights and freedoms enshrined in the Constitution, the grounds and frames of their permissible restriction;
- 4) the principle of separation of powers as enshrined in the Constitution;
- 5) the permissible limits of powers of state and local self-government bodies and their officials;
- 6) the necessity of ensuring direct application of the Constitution.

8. In cases mentioned in Paragraph 1 of this Article the Constitutional Court can make one of the following decisions:

- 1) finding the challenged act or its challenged provision in conformity with the Constitution,
 - 1.1) finding the challenged act or its challenged provision in conformity with the Constitution by the constitutional legal contents revealed by the decision of the Constitutional Court,
- 2) finding the challenged act fully or partially invalid and in non-conformity with the Constitution.

9. While determining the constitutionality of any general act mentioned in Paragraph 1 of Article 100 of the Constitution the Constitutional Court together with the challenged provision of the act finds out the constitutionality of any other provision of the act from the perspective of systematic interrelation of those. If the findings of the Court prove that other provisions of the act are interrelated with the challenged provisions and are not in conformity with the Constitution, the Constitutional Court can determine those provisions also invalid and unconstitutional.

10. In case of making a decision on determining the challenged act fully or partially invalid and unconstitutional the act is annulled after the Constitutional Court decision enters into force, except for the cases described in Paragraphs 12 and 13 of this Article.

The administrative and judicial acts adopted and implemented on the basis of those acts previous from the Constitutional Court decision are not subject to re-examination.

The implementation of the non-implemented administrative and judicial acts after the announcement of the Constitutional Court decision is immediately stopped by the decision of a relevant administrative bodies or courts.

11. The relevant provisions of the other acts that provided the implementation of the acts determined as invalid are annulled together with the challenged act.

12. The Constitutional Court can decide to validate the influence of the decisions mentioned in Subparagraph 2 of Paragraph 8 of this Article on the relations that started before those decisions got into force if the absence of such decision of the Court can cause irretrievable consequences for the state or the public.

The administrative and judicial acts that were adopted and implemented on the basis of the general acts that were annulled and found unconstitutional (together with those acts that were providing the implementation of the former) by the decision defined in Paragraph 1 of this Article within three years before the Constitutional Court decision got into force shall be revisited by the administrative and judicial bodies that adopted those in the procedure stipulated by Law.

13. In case of ruling a decision on finding unconstitutional or invalid the challenged provisions of Law related to the criminal code or the administrative liability, those provisions are annulled from the moment of the announcement of the Court's decision.

The administrative and judicial acts that were adopted and implemented for the implementation of those provisions within the period before the Constitutional Court decision got into force shall be revisited in the procedure stipulated by Law.

14. The Constitutional Court may reconsider any of its decisions mentioned in Paragraph 1 of this Article within 7 years after the ruling of its decision on the substance of the case on the basis of an appeal brought by the procedure prescribed in this Law if:

- a) the provision of the Constitution applied for the case is changed,
- b) a new understanding of the provision of the Constitution applied for the case has emerged, which may be a basis for a differing decision on the same case and if the issue has a principle importance for Constitutional Law.

The application mentioned in Paragraph 1 of this Article could not refer to the legal acts (their any provisions) that were found unconstitutional and invalid by the decision of the Constitutional Court. The decision on admission of the cases based on the applications mentioned in the first Part of this Paragraph can be made by the Constitutional Court with minimum seven votes of its Members.

The review of the cases mentioned in this Part can not be rejected on the grounds of Paragraph 3 of Article 32 of this Law if there are grounds of Paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Part for reconsidering the decision of the Constitutional Court.

15. If in accordance with Paragraph 3 of Article 102 of the Constitution the Constitutional Court finds that declaring invalid the challenged general act or any provision of it from the time of the announcement of the Court decision are unconstitutional and will inevitably cause such hard consequences for the public and for the state that it would harm the legal security expected from the annulment of the given general act, then the Constitutional Court has the right to declare the act as unconstitutional and at the same time to postpone the period of invalidation of the act. In this case the act is considered constitutional before being invalidated.

16. The postponing of the invalidation of the general legal act shall be proportionate to the period of time, which provides possibility and is necessary for taking measures for preventing the consequences described in Subparagraph 1 of Paragraph 15 of this Article.

17. The decision on the postponing must be adopted with consideration of real prevention of inevitable and harmful consequences for the public and for the state and in order to avoid more essential harm to the basic human and citizenry rights and freedoms.

(Article 68 was amended by the RA Law LA 268 N of 26.10.11)

ART. 69. REVIEW OF CASES BROUGHT BY NATURAL AND LEGAL PERSONS ON THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF THE LAWS IMPLEMENTED BY FINAL COURT DECISIONS AGAINST THOSE PERSONS REGARDING CONCRETE CASES (REVIEW OF INDIVIDUAL APPEALS)

1. The appeals on the cases described in this Article (hereinafter individual appeals) can be brought by those natural and legal persons who were participants at the courts of general jurisdiction and in specialized courts, in relation of who the law was implemented by a judicial act, who exhausted all the remedies of judicial protection and who believe that the provision of the Law applied for the particular case contradicts the Constitution.

2. The individual appeals can be submitted regarding the constitutionality of provisions of Laws adopted by the National Assembly and on referendum.

3. The National Assembly is involved as respondent in cases determined by this Law in regard to its adopted Laws.

In cases of the challenge of the Laws adopted on a referendum the National Assembly is involved as a respondent and by the decision of the Constitutional Court the Government can be involved as co-respondent if the proposal of the referendum for the Law was made by the latter.

4. The individual appeal shall include references to the provisions of the Law the constitutionality of which is challenged as well as to those provisions of the Constitution which are considered by the applicant to be contradicted by the provisions of the Law. It shall also include the arguments proving the non-conformity of those with the Constitution.

5. In cases determined in this Article the appeals can be submitted to the Constitutional Court by the natural and legal persons no later than six months after the exhaustion of the opportunities of appeal of the judicial act ruled against those.

6. A court of three Members who act on behalf of the Constitutional Court except for cases determined makes the admissibility decision on the individual appeals by Subparagraph 1 of Paragraph 14 of Article 68 of this Law. Drawing, the procedure of which is stipulated by the Charter of the Constitutional Court, forms these courts of three Members.

7. In addition to the grounds of rejection of the appeal determined in Article 32 of this Law the individual appeals may be rejected if the appeal is evidently groundless or the applicant did not exhaust all the remedies of judicial protection.

8. The decision of finding the appeal non-admissible by the procedure prescribed in Paragraph 6 of this Article shall be justified. It shall be adopted unanimously otherwise the issue of admissibility is reviewed with the full composition of the Constitutional Court. The decision on that issue is ruled no later than three months after the day of registration of the appeal.

9. In regard to cases determined by this Article the Constitutional Court rules decisions in the timeframes prescribed in Subparagraphs 1 and 2 of Paragraph 5 of Article 68 of this Law.

10. The procedure of admission and preliminary review of the individual appeals is determined by the Charter of the Constitutional Court and this Law stipulates the specific rules of making the admissibility decisions of those cases.

11. The rules of Paragraph 6-17 of Article 68 of this Law are applicable at the review of all other circumstances related to the cases determined by this Article and during making decisions on those cases.

12. In the cases defined by this Article on recognizing the provisions of the Law applied against the Applicant as null and contradicting the Constitution, or when The Constitutional Court, in the conclusive part of the decision revealing the constitutional legal contents of the provision of the law, recognized it in conformity with the Constitution and found simultaneously that the provision was applied to him in a different interpretation, the final judicial act made against the applicant on the grounds of new circumstances is subject to review in accordance with the procedure prescribed by law.

13. Part 12 of this Article also affects the persons, who on the day of publication of the decision in question by the Constitutional Court, still preserve the right to apply to the Constitutional Court on the same issue, but have not applied to the Constitutional Court. While resolving the issue of preserving the right to apply to the Constitutional Court, Parts 3 and 5 Article 32 of this Law shall not apply to the persons, mentioned in Paragraph 1 of this Part.

(Article 69 was amended by the RA Law LA 268 N of 26.10.11)

ART 70. REVIEW OF CASES BROUGHT BY LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT BODIES ON THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF THE GENERAL LEGAL ACTS

1. In cases determined in this Article an appeal can be brought to the Constitutional Court by the local self-government bodies whose rights are violated by a legal act of general nature (or its provision), which is under the jurisdiction of the Constitutional Court according to Paragraph 1 of Article 100 of the Constitution.

2. The appeals determined by this Article can be brought to the Constitutional Court from the moment when the local self-government body learnt or could learn of the violation of its rights or of the real possibility of such violation, but no later than one year after the relevant act has got into force.

3. In cases determined by this Article the appeals of the local self-government bodies shall confirm with the general requirements prescribed by this Law as well as to the requirements of Paragraph 4 of Article 69 of this Law.

4. In cases determined by this Article the respondent shall be the body that adopted the challenged general act and in case when a Law is challenged the issue of the respondent shall be decided according to the rules prescribed in Paragraph 3 of Article 69 of this Law.

5. In regard to cases determined by this article the Constitutional Court rules decisions in the timeframes prescribed in Subparagraphs 1 and 2 of Paragraph 5 of Article 68 of this Law.

6. The rules of Paragraph 6-17 of Article 68 of this Law are applicable to review of all other circumstances related to the cases determined by this Article and during making decisions on those cases.

ART. 71. REVIEW OF CASES BROUGHT BY COURTS AND BY THE CHIEF PROSECUTOR ON THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF THE GENERAL LEGAL ACTS (CONCRETE CONTROL OVER THE LEGAL PROVISIONS)

1. In cases determined by this Article the Courts and the Chief Prosecutor appeal to the Constitutional Court if they find that the legal acts of general nature (or its provision(s)), which are under the jurisdiction of the Constitutional Court according to Paragraph 1 of Article 100 of the Constitution and which shall be implemented for the case under their review, contradict the Constitution.

2. Before applying to the Constitutional Court the courts must and the Chief Prosecutor has the right to suspend the given case until the decision of the Constitutional Court gets into force.

3. The Courts may apply to the Constitutional Court after taking the case under its review before making a decision on the substance of the given case and the Chief Prosecutor can apply after taking the case under its review before sending it to the relevant Court by the procedure prescribed by Law.

4. In case of suspension of the case review the Courts and the Chief Prosecutor can submit the appeals for the cases determined by this Article within three days after such suspension.

The appeal to the Constitutional Court is formulated in a relevant decision of the Court or the Chief Prosecutor.

5. In the applications prescribed by Paragraph 1 of this Article the Court and the Chief Prosecutor shall justify their statements on the unconstitutionality of the provisions of the challenged general act as well as the fact that solution of the given case may be possible only by the implementation of the challenged provision.

6. The applicant's file of the case under review is attached to the application and is returned to the applicant after the ruling of the Constitutional Court decision.

7. In the cases determined by this Article the respondent shall be the body that adopted the challenged general act and in case, when a Law is challenged, the issue of the respondent shall be decided according to the rules prescribed in Paragraph 3 of Article 69 of this Law.

8. The review of the cases determined in this Article is done by written procedure. The parties of the trial submit written explanations expressing their standpoints before the beginning of the case review.

9. In regard to the cases determined by this article the Constitutional Court rules decisions in the timeframes prescribed in Subparagraphs 1 and 2 of Paragraph 5 of Article 68 of this Law.

10. The rules of Paragraph 7-17 of Article 68 of this Law are applicable at the review of all other circumstances related to the cases determined by this Article and during making decisions on those cases.

ART. 72. REVIEW OF THE CASES DETERMINED BY PARAGRAPH 2 OF ARTICLE 100 OF THE CONSTITUTION (CONSIDERATION OF THE CONFORMITY WITH THE CONSTITUTION OF OBLIGATIONS ASSUMED UNDER AN INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENT)

1. Before the ratification of an international agreement by the National Assembly, the President of RA shall appeal to the Constitutional Court with the question concerning the conformity of obligations assumed within the agreement with the Constitution.

2. In cases determined by this Article, based on its caseload, the Constitutional Court may take a decision on reviewing those cases in consecutive court hearings postponing the substantive decision-making for each case until the end of review of the following case.

The decision on the substance for each of those cases is made at a close-door meeting and all the decisions are announced successively in the order of their review.

3. In cases determined by this Article the case review is done in written procedure and with justified decision of the Constitutional Court the review is done verbally.

4. The decisions of the Constitutional Court on the cases determined by this Article are made within three months after their registration.

5. The Constitutional Court may adopt one of the following decisions on the case on the conformity with the Constitution of obligations assumed under an international agreement:

1) recognize the obligations deriving from the international agreement as being in conformity with the Constitution;

2) recognize the obligations deriving from the international agreement as a whole or parts of the obligations as not being in conformity with the Constitution.

ART. 73. REVIEW OF THE CASES DETERMINED BY PARAGRAPH 3 OF ARTICLE 100 OF THE CONSTITUTION (CONSIDERATION OF DISPUTES RELATED TO THE RESULTS OF REFERENDA)

1. In cases determined by Paragraph 3 of Article 100 of the Constitution the body that summarized the results of the Referendum is involved in the case as a respondent.

2. In cases determined in Paragraph 1 of this Article the Constitutional Court is authorized to assign the evidence (information related to facts) collection, necessary for holding a decision, to the state and local self-government bodies, to courts and to prosecutorial bodies, as well as to its staff members if needed. For these purpose the Constitutional Court has the right to form committees involving one of the Members of the Constitutional Court (as a leader of the Committee(s)) and the employees of the same or different bodies as well as the Deputies of the Parliament, local and international observers upon their agreement.

3. In cases of disputes related to the results of referenda it is allowed to appeal to the Constitutional Court on the fifth day, till 18.00.

4. The review of the cases determined in Paragraph 1 of this Article is done in verbal procedure.

5. The decision of the Constitutional Court in regard to the cases determined in Paragraph 1 of this Article shall be ruled within 50 days after the registration of the appeal.

6. The time period for reviewing the case may be prolonged by the decision of the Constitutional Court but no longer then one month.

7. In cases of disputes related to the results of referenda the Constitutional Court makes one of the following decisions:

1) leave unchanged the decision on the summary of the results of the referendum;

2) announce invalid the decision on the summary of the results of the referendum and determine the draft, put on a referendum, as adopted or not adopted or announce invalid the results of the referendum.

(Article 73 was amended by the RA Law LA 168 N of 26.05.11)

ART. 74. REVIEW OF THE CASES DETERMINED BY PARAGRAPH 3.1 OF ARTICLE 100 OF THE CONSTITUTION (CONSIDERATION OF DISPUTES RELATED TO THE RESULTS OF THE ELECTIONS OF THE PRESIDENT AND THE DEPUTIES OF THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY)

1. The Presidential candidates can apply to Constitutional Court in regard to cases of disputes related to the results of the elections of the President.

2. In regard to cases of disputes related to the results of the elections of the Deputies of the National Assembly (by party list system and individual system) the following persons can apply to the Constitutional Court: the candidates of the Deputies of the National Assembly for the disputes related to the results of the elections by individual system and the political parties and political unions for disputes related to the results of elections by party list system.

3. In cases of disputes related to the results of elections it is allowed to appeal to the Constitutional Court within seven days after the announcement of their official results.

4. The body that summarized the results of the elections is involved in the case hearing as a respondent.

In case of necessity by the motion of a party or by its initiative the Constitutional Court can involve as a co-respondent(s) other state and local self-government bodies (except for courts), whose decisions or actions could influence on the results of the elections or who were (are) responsible to guarantee and protect the electoral rights in the procedure stipulated by Law.

5. Those candidates or political parties (political unions) whose interests are or may be influenced by the case review or by its resulted decision can be considered as third parties by the Constitutional Court on the basis of their application. In cases when the decision of the Constitutional Court may be binding for those parties then the Court shall involve those persons itself.

6. The third parties can be involved at any stage of case review.

7. The third parties have all the rights and duties of the parties of the case, except for those rights and duties which cannot be spread over the third parties due to their nature.

8. The rules prescribed by Paragraph 2 of Article 73 of this Law are used for collection of evidence (information regarding the facts) necessary for ruling a decision on the case reviewed at the Constitutional Court.

9. The case review in cases determined by Paragraph 1 and 2 of this Article is done by a verbal procedure.

The case review in cases of disputes related to the results of the elections of the Parliament Deputies by individual system can be held in written procedure by the Constitutional Court depending on its caseload.

10. The information regarding the facts submitted by the applicant are considered true if the respondent avoids to present its standpoint on those and if they do not contradict to other substantially important evidences obtained by the Constitutional Court.

11. If the respondent accepts the circumstances that are the basis of reasoning of the requirements and arguments of the applicant then the latter is released of obligation to bring evidences on those circumstances in the future.

12. The suspension of the case review related to the challenge of the decisions on the results of national elections may be allowed only if such suspension does not delay the case review for longer than the timeframe determined in the Constitution and Paragraph 16 and 17 of this Article.

13. In cases determined by this Article the Constitutional Court examines the circumstances of unjustified rejection of examination (review) of the electoral appeals submitted in the procedure prescribed by Law by the relevant electoral commissions as well as the circumstances of breaking of timeframes of examination (review) of such appeals and of refusal or avoidance of examination (review) of those appeals. In such cases the Constitutional Court has the right to evaluate the evidences presented in the appeal as true and indisputable if such evaluation does not contradict to other evidences acquired during the case review.

14. In cases of disputes related to the results of the elections the Constitutional Court shall rule one of the following decisions:

1) Leave unchanged the decision of the electoral commission;

2) Annul the decision of the electoral commissions and:

a) declare invalid the results of the elections;

b) determine as elected the relevant candidate or the corresponding number of candidates from the electoral list of a political party (union);

c) declare the elections as non-carried-out;

d) appoint a second round.

15. If in the process of the case review, after exhausting all the means prescribed by this Law for acquiring evidences, the Constitutional Court, nevertheless, could not find out the real results of the elections, it may decide to annul the results of the elections if the proved electoral violations make obvious for the Court that they had organized nature, took place repeatedly, continually and on massive scale, and if the combined analyses proves such a systematic interrelation of those violations that the principles of electoral rights prescribed in Article 4 of the Constitution were infringed.

16. In cases of disputes related to the results of the presidential elections the Constitutional Court shall make a decision within ten days after the day of registration of the appeal.

17. In cases of disputes related to the results of the parliamentary elections by party list system the Constitutional Court shall make a decision within fifteen days after the day of registration of the appeal.

18. In cases of disputes related to the results of the parliamentary elections by individual system the Constitutional Court shall make a decision within one month after the day of registration of the appeal.

19. In cases mentioned in Paragraph 18 of this Article the timeframe of case review can be prolonged not longer then 50 days with the decision of the Constitutional Court depending on its caseload.
