Article 17 has been previously amended by Law no 9414, date 20.05.2005
Once passing the test, the candidates shall be provided with an ability license for practicing the profession as a judge or prosecutor and enter the second phase of the competition, which is delivered in writing, before a commission consisting of 5-7 persons, designated by the Steering Council, of whom 2-3 internal pedagogues and 3-4 external pedagogues of more than 5 years of experience in teaching at the School of Magistrates. The latter cannot become members of the commission two times consecutively.

Upon completion of the competition, it is issued the list of winning candidates, which is approved by the Steering Council. The admitted candidates have the obligation to attend the programme regularly and abide by the regulation of the School.

Article 18

During the period when they are following the program, candidates receive compensation equal to 50% of the pay of a judge of the district court for the first two years of the program. A candidate, who is expelled or who leaves the School in an unjustified manner, is obligated to return the compensation received during the period when he was following the theoretical program and the pre-professional internship.

Article 19

At the end of the theoretical activity and the pre-professional internship period the candidates are temporary appointed by the High Council of Justice according to the evaluations of the academic council. The evaluation scale is:

a) Insufficient
b) Sufficient
c) Good
d) Very good

The candidate evaluated insufficient is not subject to the process of temporary appointment.

Candidates for magistrates, at the end of the period provided in letter “b” of article 14 of this law, in accordance with the evaluation made by the pedagogical council of the School, in accordance with designated profiles, are provisionally appointed by the President of the Republic to perform a professional internship as judge and prosecutor respectively upon the proposal of the High Council of Justice and the General Prosecutor.

Article 19/1

The evaluation of the pedagogical council is done in five levels:

a) Outstanding;
b) Very good;
c) Good;
d) Satisfactory;
e) Unsatisfactory.

Rules and procedures for the evaluation are defined in the Internal Regulation of the School of Magistrates.

Article 20

The final evaluation of the candidates is made by the academic council set up by article 9, item 1 of this law, on the basis of the result of the theoretical and internship stages.

The Director’s office designates judges and prosecutors in the districts where the internship shall take place, whom after inspecting the work of the intern, prepare evaluation reports on him to help the council evaluate the candidate.

The Director of the School sends the list of the graduates to the High Council of Justice for final appointment. After gathering the necessary data for each candidate, the High Council of Justice makes the final appointment to the vacancies according to the evaluation by the Magistrates’ School. When there are no vacancies, those who await appointment receive the salary and have all the other rights of a magistrate.

The candidate for magistrate, in this case, with his consent, can be assigned to the position of the assistant judge or to a position in the judicial administration until a vacancy occurs.

The final evaluation of candidates is done by the pedagogical council on the basis of theoretical and the practical results of the internship.

Upon the request of the Director of the School, the chairperson of the court or the head of the prosecution office, where the internship has been conducted, shall assign judges or prosecutors who, after checking the work of the intern, shall submit evaluation reports thereof.

The Directorate of the School shall send the data of the evaluation process to the President of the Republic to make their final appointment to vacant positions in conformity with the level of their evaluation by the School, upon proposals made respectively by the High Council of Justice for judges and the General Prosecutor for prosecutors.

When vacant positions are lacking, those who are awaiting for their appointment earn respectively the pay and other rights of a judge or prosecutor.

In the absence of vacant positions, the candidate for judge or prosecutor, with his consent, may work in the judicial administration or the administration of the prosecution office, in the Ministry of Justice or as a clerk in the High Court, until a vacant position for judge or prosecutor becomes available.

Article 21

During the professional internship period, candidates enjoy rights and have obligations the same as magistrates.
Article 22

The appointed magistrates, who, without justifiable reasons, resign or ask for their removal within five years of their appointment, are obliged to pay to the Magistrates’ School the amount of money of the remuneration they received during the theoretical program and the pre-professional internship in proportion to the period of non-fulfilment of their duties.

Appointed magistrates who, without good cause, do not appear for duty, resign or ask to leave office before five years have passed from their appointment, are obligated to return to the School of Magistrates the compensation that they have received during the period provided in letters “a” and “b” of article 14 of this law, in proportion to the time of non-fulfilment of the obligation.

The return of the compensation according to the second paragraph of article 18 and the first paragraph of this article is done by order of the Director of the School that constitutes an executive title and is executed by the enforcement office.

Article 23

Supplementary Formation

The judges and prosecutors who have less than five years work experience and who have not finished the Magistrates’ School are subject to the continuous activities of continual training.

The period of continual training shall not exceed one month in a year, and three months in total during the five years.

Participation of the magistrates in the continual training activity is mandatory.

The traveling and living expenses of the participants in those courses are provided by the funds of the Magistrates’ School.

The chairman of the district court and the district prosecutor propose respectively to the Chairman of the High Court of Cassation and to the General Prosecutor, the judges and the prosecutors that will attend training activities. The High Council of Justice, upon the proposal of the Chairman of the High Court of Cassation and of the General Prosecutor, determines the number and the magistrates who will attend these activities.

Judges and prosecutors of first instance courts and prosecution offices and those of courts of appeal are subject to continuous education.

The time period for continuous education should not exceed 20 days a year and no more than 60 days in five years.

The program of continuous formation is drawn up by the Director of the School after having first received the opinion of the Chairman of the High Court, the General Prosecutor, the Ministry of Justice, the High Council of Justice and the pedagogical council of the School. The program of continuous formation is approved by the Steering Council of the School.
The continuous training programme is drafted by the Director of the School in cooperation with the internal pedagogical staff, after obtaining the preliminary opinion of the Chairperson of the High Court, the General Prosecutor, the Ministry of Justice, the High Council of Justice and the Pedagogical Council of the School. The continuous training programme is approved by the Steering Council of the School.

Participation in these trainings is mandatory.

Travel and board costs for these activities shall be covered by budgetary funds provided for this purpose, respectively by funds of the Judicial Budget Administration Office, the General Prosecutor’s Office and other legal sources predetermined for those activities.

Article 24

The Magistrates’ School periodically organizes academic sessions, workshops, discussions and other activities in order to provide updated information for the improvement of the magistrates. The participation of the magistrates in these academic and scientific activities is optional. The traveling and living expenses during these activities are provided by the courts and prosecutors’ offices to which the participants belong. The Magistrates’ School, in cooperation with the Ministry of Justice, the High Court of Cassation, the general Prosecutors’ Offices and the law faculties, organizes full-time day courses for judges and prosecutors. The selection procedure is the same as the one explained in the previous article. The magistrate himself decides the period and the area of training. The above mentioned activities do not have a goal of disqualification.

Proposals to the participation of each judge and prosecutor in specific activities of the continuous education shall be made to the Director of the School of Magistrates, respectively, by chairpersons of first instance courts or courts of appeal and by the head of the prosecution office at those courts.

Upon the proposal of the Director of the School of Magistrates, the High Council of Justice for judges and the General Prosecutor for prosecutors approve lists with the names of the persons who will take part in continuous training for at least a one year period, according to the respective activities determined in the program of continuous formation.

Article 25

The judges, the prosecutors, and the lawyers who participate in the continual training activities and in the improvement courses, at the end of them, are provided with a special certificate given by the Director of the Magistrates’ School. The certificates are placed in their files and give evidence of the qualification of the magistrates. Judges and prosecutors who take part in continuous formation are furnished with a certificate issued by the Director of the School. A copy of the certificate is put into the personal file of the judges and prosecutors.
